SURAT HISTORY

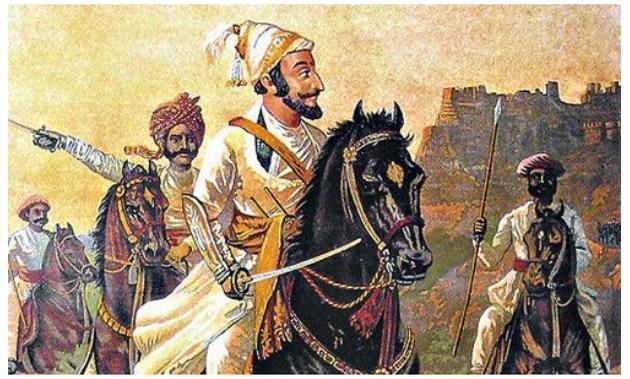

Surat was founded by Gopi, who named the area Surajpur or Suryapur. In the 12th and 15th centuries, Surat was plundered by Muslims. In 1512, and again in 1530, Surat was ravaged by the Portuguese Empire. In 1514, the Portuguese traveler Duarte Barbosa described Surat as an important seaport, frequented by many ships from Malabar and various parts of the world. By 1520, the name of the city had become Surat.

Surat is well known of clothes and diamond. Surat is a major hub of diamond cutting and polishing. The first diamond workshops in Gujarat appeared in Surat and Navasari in the late 1950s. Around the world, 8 out of 10 diamonds on the market were cut and polished in Surat. This industry earns India about US$10 billion in annual exports. It is also called diamond city and silk city. It has a population around 46 lakhs after Ahmedabad it has a highest population.

Surat has around 7.5 lakh looms and 450 textile processing houses. It also has 70000 embroidery units.

Since it is known for producing textiles, including silk, Surat is known as the textile hub of the nation or the Silk City of India. It is very famous for its cotton mills and Surat Zari Craft. Surat is the biggest center of MMF (man-made fiber) in India. In diamond business Surat has 90000 diamond cutting and polishing units. Surat has 70% textile business in india.

Bardoli sugar factory is the largest sugar factory in Asia. The average annual rainfall of the city has been 1143mm.

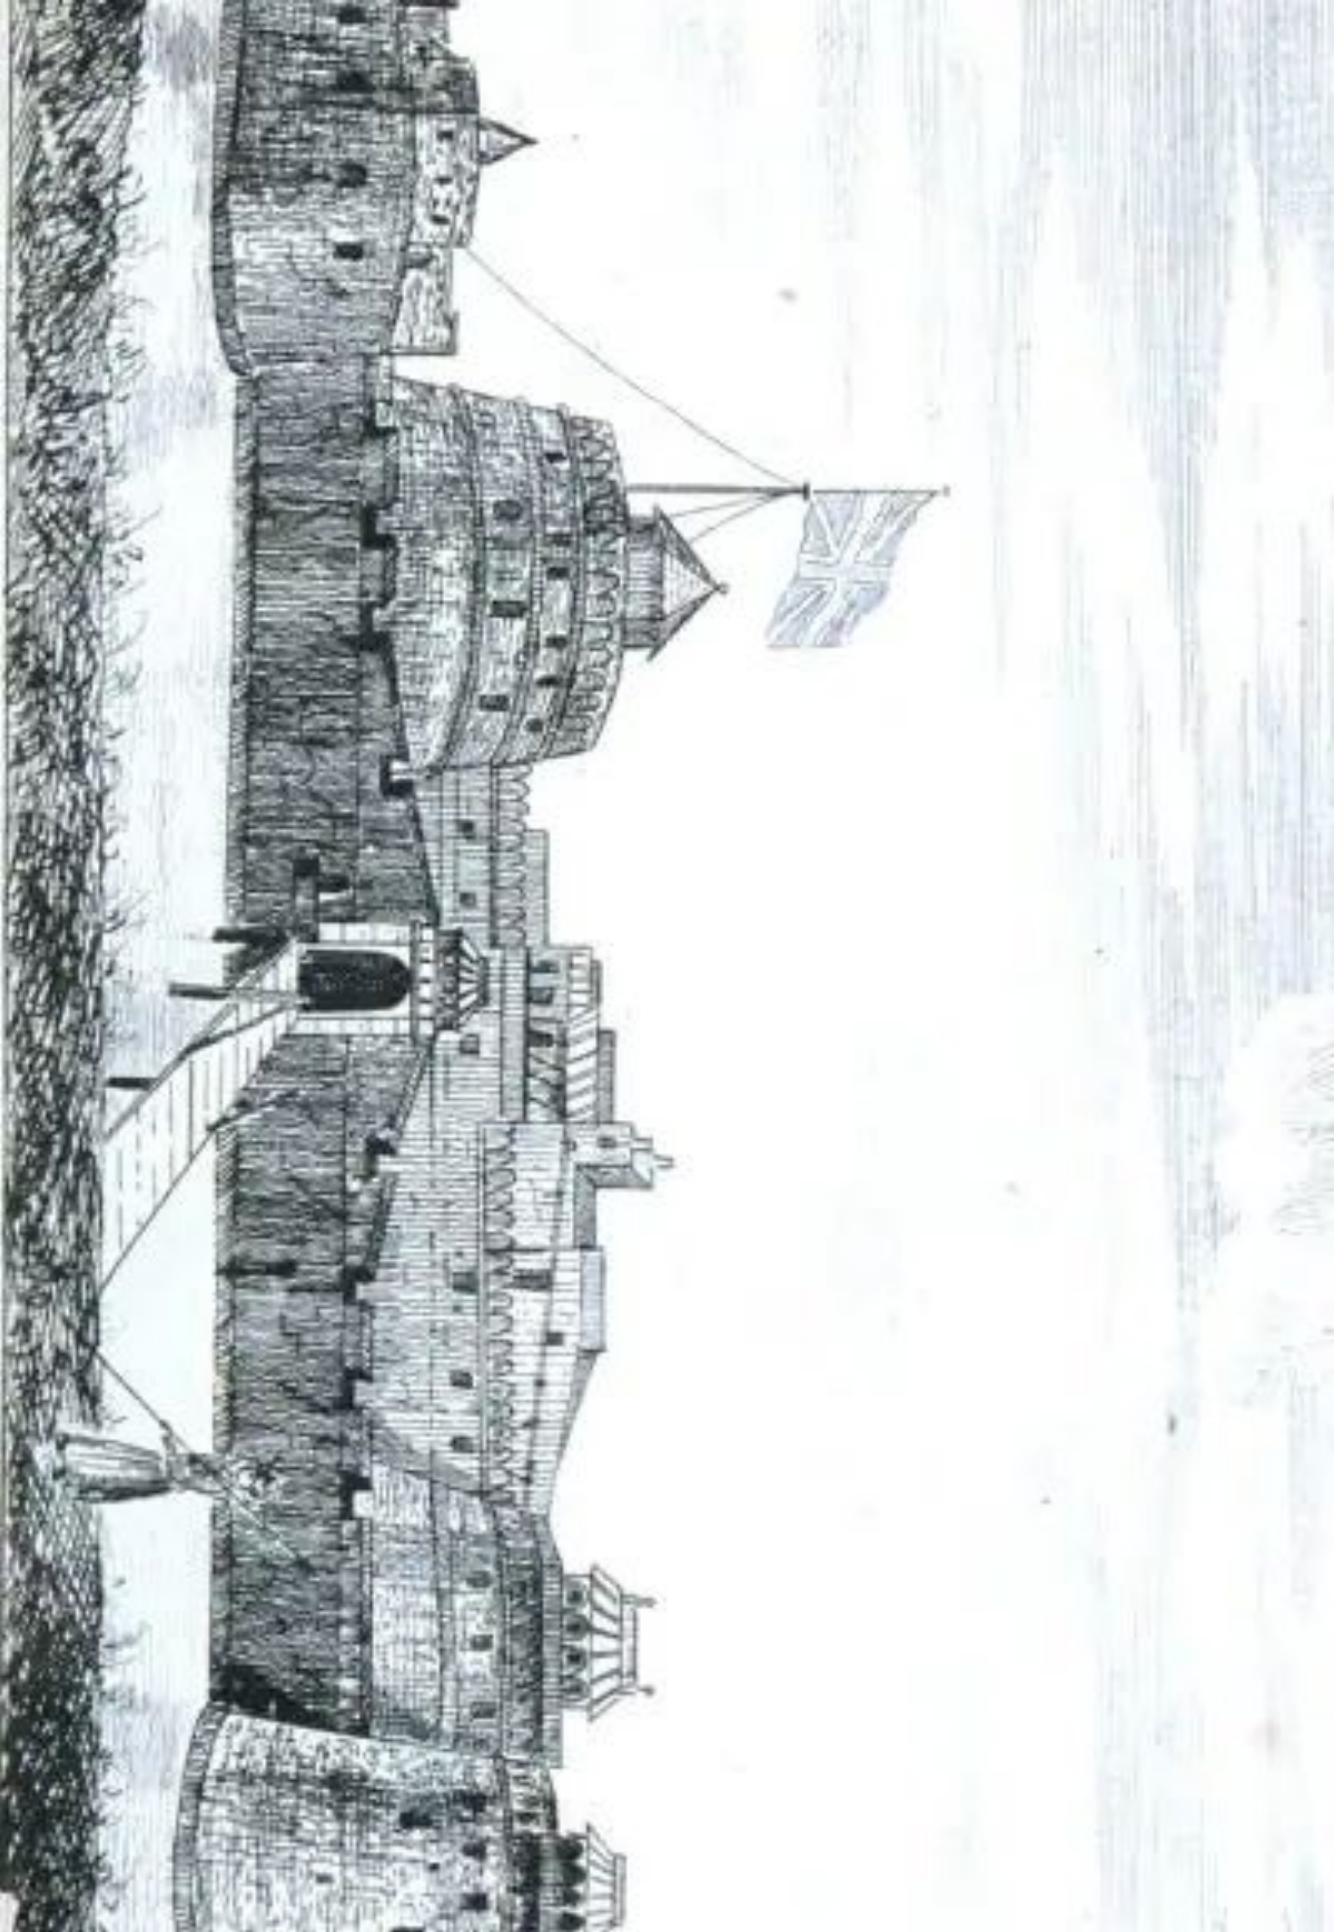

Surat is india 4th smartest city. Surat city has 102k.m of BRTS route. Maratha king chhatrapati shivaji had raided twice in Surat city Gopi talao is a tourist point in surat.

Surat is the one of the famous city in Gujarat and also its financial capital. Mumbai is the financial capital of India. Mumbai pays the highest tax in whole country. But in 1618 Surat was the richest city. People in Surat were very rich at that point of time.

An English officer named barmier roamed around Surat. He has written about Surat in his book. In his book he has written that, he have seen a pile of gold coins in each and every house, the gold coins were kept there like a wheat bags. People were so rich that even they also don't know how much money they have. People had not even counted gold coins that they used to kept in their home. They weigh gold coins in their scales like 10kgs or 20kgs. They had no free time to count their coins.

There is only one gold mine in India that is in Karnataka. Surat is one of biggest business center in India.

All the goods and commodities sold out in foreign countries were going through surat city because surathas the biggest seaport in India. Goods sent from Surat to foreign countries are sold in exchange of gold coins. In 16th and Iron and steel was also sold in foreign countries from India. In India there are many iron mines in odisha, Jharkhand, Karnataka, Maharashtra. In 17th century there were 20,000 factories that produce steel of best quality that it doesn't catch rust. In Delhi a place named mehraulī there is an iron pillar was originally erected during the time of King Chandra. This pillar is famous for its non-rusted state, despite being made of 99% iron and having an existence of around 1600 years. You will be surprised to know that the steel was also sold in exchange of gold. In India brick was also sold out in other countries because of its good quality and are made to last for generations. The average lifespan of that bricks is estimated more than 1000 years. Forts of kings were made up of this bricks. The city all this was sold its name is Surat. That's the reason East India Company asked Jahangir for business license in Surat. Surat was one of the wealthiest city in India.

17th century business was running in exchange of gold. At that time many types of goods were sold out in foreign countries but cloth was the most selling item because India produces good quality of cloth that have most demand in foreign. Dhaka, Madhya Pradesh Indore, Malwa Surat were famous in making muslin cloth of best quality. Cloth is made by cotton and India has specialty in making cotton of best quality. So, cloths were sold in abroad from Surat with the help of ships in foreign countries in exchange of gold and that's how the business was running from India. The cloth was sold in Paris, London, New York, America, Canada and European countries. Cloth was kept on weighing scale and sold in exchange of gold. Roman Empire Kings and Queens would usually wear clothes which are made in India. After Roman Empire Europe and America use to buy cloth from India.
